For ornamenting glass for doors and transoms, W. A. Bridges leads the van with his perfect sand blast. He shows excellent specimens of work in that line, and his rates are surprisingly low. j10w

The democrats here feel satisfied that the Chicago convention came as near nominating the old ticket as was possible. Cleveland was Mr. Tilden's preference, and Hendricks is a big half of the ticket of '76.

A large crowd congregated near the dime museum on the corner of Franklin and Park streets last evening to witness the young lady perform the feat of sliding down the high wire suspended only by her hair.

Mr. Volney Barber's deer park at his farm, has been ruined by a vicious dog, which got into the enclosure and killed one of the pretty animals. Another was seriously injured, and the third one put to flight.

Company H will most likely be measured this week for their dress uniforms, which will be ready for the boys to wear to the encampment at Springfield, in August. They will be about the same as their old uniforms.

Mike McKingh, a somewhat notorious character of Bloomington, was shot in the arm and painfully wounded, at the Union depot in that city, on Friday morning, by Michael Sullivan. Sullivan acted strictly in self-defense.

The news of the nomination of Cleveland and Hendricks was received at Boody on Friday evening with loud demonstrations of approval. Guns were fired and a lively impromptu ratification meeting followed the announcement.

A letter received yesterday by Mr. J. W. Averitt, from his brother-in-law, J. M. Hawk, of Kentucky, conveyed the information that he is now on his way to Macon county with a drove of two hundred and twenty-nine head of fine Tennessee cattle.

On account of the annual re-nomination of the Grand Army of the Republic at Minneapolis, from the 23d to the 25th of the present month, the Wabash will sell round-trip tickets at $15. Tickets will be good for thirty days and will be on sale from the 19th to the 23d.

"Facts are stubborn things," and sufferers from chills and fever generally find their complaint a very stubborn fact, until they commence the use of Ayer's Ague Cure. That medicine eradicates the malarious poison from the system, and invariably cures even the worst cases. j8d&w1w

It is wonderful to see the Little Monitor Grain Separator clean and separate. It takes everything out of wheat. It is manufactured by Bean, and handled by Smith & Shade. Agents wanted in every county. Call on Smith & Shade, at Decatur, and investigate for yourself. july8d1w

Those Penniwell will accompany an excursion to Independence, Florence and Wellington, Kan., on Tuesday, the 5th of August. Take the chair car route. For further information call on or address Thos Penniwell, excursion agent, 145 Prairie street.

The judges selected to examine specimens of penmanship and the progress made by the pupils of Prof. H. S. DeSollars' writing school, gave the first prize to T. F. Muleady, and the second to Oscar Danzeisen. Messrs. Scruggs, Warren, Gorin and Patterson composed the committee of judges.

Advocates of prohibition need have no fears of "Prickly Ash Bitters" as it is a medicine, and by reason of its cathartic properties cannot be used as a beverage. It is manufactured from the purest materials, and acts directly on the Liver, Kidneys, Stomach and Bowels. As a blood purifier it has no equal. It is pleasant to the taste, and effective in action.

Efforts made to get up a democratic ratification meeting for to-night have proven a fizzle. [Republican.] No effort was made yesterday, by the democracy of this city, to ratify the nomination of Cleveland and Hendricks last night, but next Saturday night there will be a ratification that will surpass anything seen in this neck of the woods for a long time.

Workmen are now engaged in putting Reene's hose house in shape for the paid fire department and the new economical engine "Champion" but recently received from Chicago. A small stable for the horses that will draw the chemical is being built in the rear end of the house. Other valuable improvements will be made, and the house will soon be in splendid shape.

There came near being a wreck at the depot yesterday afternoon through the carelessness of a Wabash engineer. The target was turned for the Central and that train was just about to cross the Wabash track, when an engine on the latter road suddenly ran by in front of the Central. The engineer on that train applied the air brake, and prevented what might have been a disastrous crash.

A team of horses belonging to a farmer created something of an excitement on North Water street last evening, by running away. The owner of the team had entered a store and left a young man holding them. One of the horses reared and striking the young man on the shoulders, knocked him to the ground, when they immediately broke into a hard run. The wagon passed over the man who had been holding the team, but did not seriously injure him. The horses were captured near the rail road, having done very little damage. Water street was crowded with people and vehicles at the time, and it is a wonder that some one was not hurt.

Whether the failure of Grant's rotten bank had its effect in dampening speculative ardor in this community, or whether it is owing to repeated failures of such concerns nearer home, one fact is demonstrated—men who will not take the pains to reflect, nor listen to reason, will be warned by repeated and disastrous failures. The Decatur bucket shop is a thing of the past. The latest effort in that line, conducted by S. T. Johnson, has closed its doors, and the proprietor has gone back to Chicago. It was a losing game to him here, as he did not do sufficient business to cover expenses. He was more honorable, however, than some of his predecessors, as he paid all his bills like a man, and left in good credit.

The killing of Joseph Brown by the Wabash train at the Edwards street crossing, yesterday afternoon, has revived the general complaint against the company for running trains at such a rapid and unlawful rate of speed within the city limits, and causes many of our best citizens to inveigh most strongly against the officers of our city for their failure to enforce the law in such case made and provided. The inquest which meets this morning should inquire very closely into this matter, as well as to whether the bell was rung, the whistle sounded, or any or all of the safeguards against accident properly observed, and if not, the railroad company and its officers and employees held responsible as the law provides.

For some time past Captain Kidd, of the Springfield Monitor, and Editor Cleland, of the Springfield Register, have been engaged in a fierce newspaper warfare, notwithstanding the fact that the political complexion of both sheets was the same. Both the editors named attended the Democratic National convention this past week, and when Hendricks was nominated for the vice presidency, their hatred for each other melted, and amidst the wildest enthusiasm they shook hands across the bloody chasm and yelled lustily for the grand ticket presented to the people by the democracy of this country. The Monitor's head lines yesterday over its report of the convention read, "Angels, answer and tell us if this means not victory when the democrats nominate Cleveland and Hendricks, and Kidd and Cleland with clasped hands yell for the ticket." The Monitor and Register are two of the best and most influential papers in the state outside of Chicago, and they will prove a power to democracy in Sangamon county this fall.

GROUND TO DEATH.

A Shocking Accident at the Edwards Street Crossing.

A distressing and shocking accident occurred yesterday afternoon about four o'clock, by which Joseph Brown, a well known farmer of Austin township, was literally ground to pieces under the wheels of Wabash passenger train No. 5, which leaves this city at 3.40 for St. Louis, and by which one of his horses was instantly killed. Mr. Brown had been in the city during the day transacting business, and was going out Edwards street towards home, when the accident happened. He was seated in a comparatively light spring wagon, and did not see nor hear the train approach, as there is an embankment which leads to the railroad on either side at this crossing. The main line and St. Louis track run side by side, and when Mr. Brown was fairly on the latter, he discovered the passenger train coming towards him at a fast rate. Persons who witnessed the horrible scene say the team became frightened and for a second could not be managed, but it also appears that the train was moving so rapidly that it struck the wagon almost as soon as it was on the track. Another report is that the team started to run away when within thirty feet of the crossing, and that all efforts of the driver to prevent them from dashing in front of the train proved useless. The team and wagon were thrown a distance of thirty or forty feet and one of the horses instantly killed. The other escaped with a slight cut on the leg, while the wagon was badly wrecked. The unfortunate owner was dashed to the track and fearfully mangled by the cruel wheels which passed over his head, his heart, and other vital organs. The wheels also passed over the region of the hips, almost severing the body in twain, while the right arm was crushed to a jelly. The train, which was in charge of Conductor Charlie Conklin, with Wm. Brown as engineer, was stopped to find the result of the accident, and then started on its run again. It passed entirely over the body before the stop could be made.

Word was immediately sent to Coroner Bendure and he was soon on the scene gathering up the remains which were removed to Ballard's undertaking establishment, where they were viewed by hundreds of people. Nearly every one had known the deceased, and there was general sorrow among those who looked upon the mangled remains. The skillful Mr. Ballard soon had the body in a presentable condition, and this morning at three o'clock it was taken to his home.

Joseph Brown was a hard working farmer in good circumstances, living in the southeast corner of Austin township with his aged parents, whose sole support he was. He was thirty-five years of age, and was a temperate man, and straightforward in all of his business transactions. About eight years ago his brother, while out hunting in a sleigh, was accidentally shot in the breast, and died from the effects of the wound a few days after. It will be a hard blow to the parents of the deceased, whose aged heads are now bowed for the son they loved so well. They are most excellent people and have the sympathy of the entire community in their terrible affliction.

Coroner Bendure impanelled the following jury last evening: I. Baldwin, foreman; B. N. Adams, C. A. Carter, H. Plotner, E. R. Culver and E. W. Anderson. After viewing the remains, the jury adjourned until this morning at 3 o'clock when a rigid inquiry as to who is to blame for the accident, will be made. It is stated that neither the whistle nor bell was sounded for the crossing, but the truth or falsity of the statement will be established at the inquest this morning. At any rate the train was moving at a rapid rate of speed, as nearly all Wabash trains do in order to disregard for the law.

Special Premiums.

The following special premiums for the coming county fair have been offered in addition to the large number already published:

By E. Z. Taylor, for the best display of flax seed, not less than three bushels, $5.

By John Imboden, for best made calico dress by a married lady, $5.

By T. O. Stoner, for the best sow with not less than four pigs, $5.

By H. W. Hull, for the best two of light Brahmas, one pair of Plymouth Rock chicks.

By R. T. Davis, for best trio of dark Brahmas, one Partridge Cockerin cock rail.

By Quinn & Seeforth, for best trio of game chickens, one box of good cigars.

During this week, Secretary Hostetter expects to receive a great many more special premiums which will help to increase the interest in the fair. The citizens are displaying a spirit of liberality in giving premiums and evidently intend to do all in their power to make the fair the most successful ever held in this county.

Prompt relief in sick headache, dizziness, nausea, constipation, pain in the side, etc., guaranteed to those using Carter's Little Liver Pills. One pill a dose. 25c. j8d&w1m.

The Daventon News says that Judge C. B. Smith was in that city on Friday, with a view of forming a company for manufacturing his new patent check rower. He held a consultation with a number of Danville capitalists, who were favorably impressed with the workings of the machine. It is proposed to form a stock company with a capital of $10,000 or $20,000. The News says that while no attempt was made Friday to raise the money, at least one third of it was pledged.

Conductor John Larash, of the P. D. & E., is a great fisherman, and judging from the following taken from the Pekin Times, his son must be a chip of the old block. "John Larash's son, who is about 13 years old, caught a pike this morning about 2 1/2 feet long. The little fellow marched up Court street with his prize, as proud as a bantam hen with a brood of chickens."

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

CURE SICK HEADACHE.

Sick Headache and relieve all the troubles incident to a bilious state of the system, such as Dizziness, Nausea, Bloating, Diarrhea after eating, Pain in the Side, &c. While their most remarkable success has been shown in curing headache, yet Carter's Little Liver Pills are equally valuable in constipation, curing and preventing this annoying complaint, while they also correct all disorders of the stomach, stimulate the liver and regulate the bowels. Even if they only cured ache they would be almost precious to those who suffer from this distressing complaint; but fortunately their goodness does not end here, and those who once try them will find these little pills valuable in so many ways that they will not be willing to do without them. But after all sick head is the name of so many lives that here is where we make our great benefit. Our pills cure it while others do not.

Carter's Little Liver Pills are very small and very easy to take. One or two pills make a dose. They are strictly vegetable and do not gripe or purge, but by their gentle action please all who use them. Invaluable to all; send for full particulars by mail, or sent by mail.
